DEVOTED TO THE INTERESTS OF WASHINGTON COUNTY

VOLUME V. SPRINGFIELD, KY., WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 22, 1909. NUMBER 42

HON. W. D. CLAYBROOKE

Is Being Urged to Run For Nomination For Secretary of State. Has The Matter Under Consideration.

Hon. W. D. Claybrooke for some time past has been in receipt of communication from political and personal friends throughout Kentucky urging him to make the race for the Democratic nomination for Secretary of State two years hence. Mr. Claybrooke was in Louisville last week attending the State Fair and while there he was approached by a number of Kentucky's leading politicians and urged to run. Mr. Claybrooke has the matter under consideration and if he sees fit to make the race will announce at the proper time.

Probably no Democrat of his age in Kentucky is better known or more popular not only with the leaders but also with the people than is Billy Claybrooke. Two years ago he was on the ticket with Hubert Vreeland, who made the race for Secretary of State, while for the four years prior thereto he represented Washington county in the Legislature, where he was one of the best known and most useful members of that body.

If Mr. Claybrooke goes into the race he will enter with very strong backing and the party could nominate no more genial gentleman or stronger candidate for the office of Secretary of State.

If Mr. Claybrooke makes the race it can safely be predicted that nearly every Democrat in this section will support him.

Death of Mr. Graves.

Mr. Ed Graves, a highly respected citizen of this county, who lived near Fenwick, died Monday morning of cancer of the bowels. Funeral services were conducted at St. Dominic's church yesterday morning and the body laid to rest in St. Dominic's cemetery.

Mr. Graves leaves a widow and eleven children.

Historic Bridge Ruined.

Perryville, Ky., Sept. 14.—The old covered bridge which was built across Chaplin river at this place in 1854 was practically wrecked when an engine and twenty-ton rock crusher were taken across. The engineer jumped and ran from the bridge when the timbers began to crack. The bridge has been fenced in, and is unsafe. It will be replaced by a modern steel structure. An interesting relic of the old bridge is an iron brace which had become indented by a cannon ball during the battle of Perryville.

Nad Captured.

Nad is again a boarder of Jailer Catlett's. About six weeks ago while stopping at the same hostelry Nad became tired of the accommodations and without the formality of saying farewell took his departure to parts unknown, and until yesterday had fought shy of Springfield. Yesterday Marshal Grace and Jailer Catlett were informed that Nad was visiting in Hockertown and early this morning went down to pay their respects. One stationed himself at the front door of Nad's place of abode and the other at the rear. When Nad discovered this he went out a window and made for the "tall uncut" with both of his pursuers shooting at him. In jumping from the window he sprained his ankle and was caught after a short chase and returned to his old place of abode with the jailer.

BISHOP McCLOSKEY

Full of Years and of Honors Passed Away Last Week. Grand Tribute Paid to Dead Prelate.

A pall of gloom was cast over Kentucky last Friday by the announcement of the death of Rev. Wm. George McCloskey, for so many years the beloved bishop of the Louisville diocese of the Catholic church. Bishop McCloskey's death was not unexpected as his health for some time had not been of the best and because of his advanced years his friends and loved ones were prepared at any time to hear that the noted prelate and Godly divine had passed away.

Bishop McCloskey's death means not only a loss to Kentucky but to the Catholic church and the Christian world. His life had been devoted to his church and to the cause to which he had consecrated himself. For fifty-nine years he had served in the ministry and for nearly forty-two had filled the exalted position of Bishop. His worth and the esteem in which he was held has been manifested since his death by the tributes paid him by the clergy of the highest rank and by those of lesser degree who with bowed head and tear be-dimmed eye have looked upon his remains.

Altho the funeral services have been as simple as possible, in accordance with the late Bishop's wishes, every honor has been accorded him and many of the most noted of the Catholi eclergy have united in the obsequies. Bishop McCloskey was yesterday buried beside his brother in the beautiful cemetery at Nazareth.

Bishop McCloskey was the oldest Catholic prelate in the United States and was the fourth Bishop of the Louisville diocese, having succeeded Bishop Lavaille in 1868. Under him the church has grown and prospered greatly.

Bishop McCloskey was born in Brooklyn on Nov. 10, 1823, of prosperous parents and was educated at Mt. St. Mary's College where he was later a prosessor. When the American College was founded in Rome Bishop McCloskey was made its first rector and in this position as in all others that he filled he displayed marked ability.

The late Bishop had rare executive ability and his death will mean a great loss to the church.

Hon. John A. Johnson, thrice Governor of Minnesota, a strongly Republican state, and one of the most prominent Democrats of the United States, died yesterday morning, following an operation for abscess of the bowels, which was performed last week. Gov. Johnson rose from poverty to a position of the highest eminence, not only having been urged by many for the Democratic nomination for the Presidency last year, but at the present time being looked forward to as the redeemer of the party in 1912. President Taft during his recent visit to Minnesota said that Gov. Johnson would some day probably be called upon to act as President of this great republic. A man of fine sense and fine character, a man of the people and for the people, his death will not only be felt by his State and his party but by the nation as a whole.

Meeting of U. D. C.

The doors of the handsome home of Mrs. W. C. McChord were thrown open on Saturday last when Miss Anna, the charming hostess, received in that winsome style all her own the May Faris Chapter of the U. D. C. Mrs. Carrie Durrett, the President, gave a medley of reminiscences of Morgan, Shackelford and Mrs. Thompson, who was the only woman pensioned by the Government in the Civil War. The Chaplain being absent Mrs. Ida Clarkson acted protem. Mrs. F. Bosley and Miss Anna McChord were an inspiration with their delightful musical selections. Mrs. G. C. Wharton gave a most interesting paper. The pen pictures were beautiful and as they were given her by that honored ex-Confederate, Capt. Craycroft, her father, they were much enjoyed and presented to the mind's eye the deeds of daring of the men who wore the gray, as viewed in a living panorama. Business was resumed and Mrs. Ida Clarkson, by a unanimous vote, was elected Secretary. A committee was appointed to select a marker for the unknown Confederate soldier's grave in the Presbyterian cemetery. Delegates were selected to attend the State Convention at Hopkinsville, Ky., Mrs. J. K. Durrett, Mrs. G. C. Wharton and Miss Anna McChord. A most instructive and successful business meeting closed. The social part was then taken up. Refreshments delicious and refreshing were served in attractive style. The next meeting will take place at the home of Mrs. John Walker, near town. X

Accidentally Killed.

Mr. J. W. Bush received a telegram this morning from Helper, Utah, stating that his brother-in-law, Mr. John Perry, had been accidentally killed by the machinery of the light plant in which he was the superintendent. Mr. Perry married Miss Dora Trotter, formerly of Springfield, and the daughter of Mrs. Mary Trotter. Mr. Perry was an expert electrician, and the inventor of several appliances for electrical machinery. His services were always in demand in the neighboring cities of his adopted State, having recently declined the superintending of a large light plant in Salt Lake City.

Owensboro Inqurer Sold.

Owensboro, Ky., Sept. 20.—Negotiations which have been pending for the past week resulted today in the formal transfer of the Owensboro Inquirer from W. Q. Adams to S. W. Hager, recent Democratic nominee for Governor. The consideration was in the neighborhood of $30,000.

W. Q. Adams has published the Owensboro Inquirer for thirteen years. Mr. Adams was compelled to dispose of his paper on account of bad health and will give up all active business.

The policy of the paper will be changed from that of an independent with Republican leanings to a straight Democratic. The Republicans will issue a paper from a job office until a first-class plant can be secured and then establish a permanent Republican organ. E. T. Franks and J. W. McCulloch are behind the Republican organ.

LOSS TO COMMUNITY

Was The Death of Mrs. Nannie Edelen.—A Christian Woman Loved By a Large Circle of Friends.

Mrs. Nannie Edelen died at the home of her husband two miles from Springfield Wednesday, September 15, her death being caused by cancer of the liver from which she had been a sufferer for about a year.

Mrs. Edelen was the daughter of the late Judge John H. McIntire, at one time County Judge of this county, and in his day one of its most prominent and highly esteemed citizens. Mrs. Edelen was born March 19, 1850, and on September 20, 1870, was united in marriage with Mr. J. Polin Edelen. To this union twelve children were born, eight of whom survive their mother. The children living are Mrs. W. T. Leachman, Miss Pearl Edelen, Miss Stella Edelen and Messrs. Walter, Ray, George, Joseph and Thomas Edelen. Mr. Edelen also survives his wife.

Funeral services were held at St. Rose church Friday morning at 9:30 o'clock, Rev. Father Kennedy conducting the requiem high mass. The remains were interred in St. Rose cemetery, where the grave was covered with the flowers sent by loving friends.

Mrs. Edelen was one of the best Christian women in this community and was a faithful and consistent member of the Catholic church. She was not a woman to push herself into the world but her greatest pleasure lay in being with her family, than which a better has not been raised in this community. In spite of the fact, however, that Mrs. Edelen cared but little for society no one had more friends as was evidenced during the dark hours of suffering preceding her death when every friend desired to do what they might to alleviate her suffering and make her last days as peaceful and happy as possible.

To Mr. Edelen, the children and to the many friends The Sun extends its sincerest sympathy.

Some Farm Laws

The following is the substance of the fourth lecture delivered by Judge W. T. Lafferty on Farm Law to the students of the State University at Lexington his subject being "Corporations and Partnerships."

Judge Lafferty called attention to the importance of realizing the distinction between a corporation and a partnership, because of the fact that the obligations of the parties involved are very different in the two cases.

A Corporation is termed in law a "soulless body" of an "artificial person." A corporation is created in certain laws and must be made up of at least three persons, although prior to 1894 one person might legally constitute a corporation, which in that case was called a "soul" corporation. A corporation binds itself by so called articles of incorporation in which its name must be given, a statement of the business which it proposes to conduct, the duration of its life, the amount of capital stock and the number of shares of stock involved in its organization. These articles of incorporation must be filed in the county clerk's office and also with the Secretary of State.

In a corporate body people take stock and are interested in proporation to the number of shares for which they have subscribed and paid. If a corporation becomes insolvent, its creditors can secure from it in payment of their claims only the value of its assets.

If there are no assets, the creditors' loss is complete, except in those corporations to which a double liability applies, in which case the stockholders are responsible for an additional amount equal to the amount of stock for which they have subscribed. The laws of the State determine what corporations must act under the double liability requirements.

It is important that farmers and others should inquire carefully into the character of a corporation with which they may enter into business relations as creditors.

A corporation must have a charter and by-laws and these must designate the officers of the corporation entitled to do business for it. The individual stock holder of a corporation cannot make a trade in behalf of the corporation and it is not liable for any such contract which may be so made. An agent of a corporation can have no authority other than that which his credentials show. These conditions are, for example, applicable to dealings with an insurance company. Every policy of insurance should state all its conditions and the word of the agent should not be accepted for any additional conditions than those named in the policy. The agents are entitled to do only what they are specifically delegated to do, and no individual stock holder is entitled to make contracts in behalf of the corporation unless specifically delegated to do so. All business contracts of a corporation should be made only by the officers of the company.

It sometimes occurs that when stock holders in a corporation become suspicious that the corporation is about to fail, that they try to sell out their stock and in such cases farmers as well as others should make careful investigations as to the condition of the corporation. Especially careful investigations should be made if the corporation concerned is one which is subject to a double liability, as the purchaser of stock of such a corporation, if it fails, may lose not only the entire purchase price of the stock but also an additional amount equal to the value of the stock which he purchased.

Public service corporations may be subject to certain restrictions and liabilities to which other corporations are not liable. A public service corporation can be forced to perform certain services for the public consideration of its franchise, which gives such a corporation a legal right to certain privileges. If such a public service corporation fails to perform its duties it may be fined. Judge Lafferty illustrated this state by the case of a railroad company which upon selling a ticket to a certain station upon its lines is legally bound to transport the passenger to that point, and if it inadventently carries the passenger beyond the station to which he purchased a ticket, the railroad company can be compelled to take the passenger back. If the company fails to do so, the passenger so inconvenienced may sue the company with usually excellent prospects of a favorable verdict. In the case of telegraph companies also, a person who suffers by reason of an undelivered telegram has a right of action against the company.

The conditions of a partnership are distinctly different from those of a corporation a partnership being simply an agreement to do any business that two or more persons may choose to undertake together. They do not file any articles of agreement, and each member of a partnership may be legally bound for the entire indebtedness of the firm. There may, however, be formed limited partnerships in which a partner may not be bound for more than a specified amount. The conditions of such a partnership must be filed in the county clerk's office, showing the limited relationship of such a member to the firm. Any partner who enters into such a limited partnership, and does not file the fact of this limited relationship in the office of the county clerk, is bound for the entire obligations of the firm. Each partner of a general partnership is therefore bound for the debts of the whole, except in the case of this limited partnership. There cannot, however, be a partnership formed in which all the members have a limited liability, as in this case the organization becomes a corporation.

One may become a silent partner in a firm and his name may not appear either upon the sign of the firm or upon its business stationary, but such a silent partner assumes the same obligations in the way of liability for indebtedness as though his name appeared upon the signs and business paper of the firm.

In the case of a partnership in which certain members have a limited liability, the low requires that the word "limited" be added.

In a partnership, unlike the conditions of a corporation, any man who is a partner binds the company for any trade he may make in behalf of the company, whether the other members of the company approve his transaction or not. If, however, a member of a firm makes purchase of any commodity which is distinctly outside of the line of business of the partnership, the firm may not become liable. Such a transaction might therefore result in a law suit.

The agent of a partnership is subject to the same limitations in making contracts as the agent of a corporation and in dealing with any such agent of a partnership organization, one should be careful to make sure that the agent has the necessary authority for making contracts. On the other hand one is perfectly safe in dealing with any one of the partners of such a partnership organization, whereas in the case of a corporation one cannot safely make contracts except with the duly authorized officers of such a corporation.

Liver Trouble Remedy Free

Any intelligent person can be his own doctor in the ordinary case of liver trouble, for the symptoms cannot be mistaken. If the white of the eye becomes yellowish, if the skin becomes sallow, if pimples and blotches appear, if the bowels do not move, if you have sick headache, if you are bilious, you may be sure that your liver is torpid or inactive.

The quickest and surest remedy yet found for the cure of liver trouble or any of its symptoms is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, the great herb laxative compound. This wonderful remedy is not only a laxative, but a tonic as well. It will start the flow of gastric juice, thereby soon enabling the liver to do its work naturally. A bottle of this great liver remedy can be bought of any druggist for 50 cents or $1, and in many cases a single bottle has cured a chronic case.

For example, John W. Lee, 619 S. Pennsylvania ave., Indianapolis, Ind., had a stubborn and very long-standing case of liver trouble, with pimples, blotches, jaundice, etc., and it cured him. Mrs. B. Flinchum, Jackson, Ky., says the same of it. Thousands of families keep it in the house against just such an emergency, as you can never tell when some member of the family will need a good laxative.

In order to have you or any other sufferer from the liver make a test of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin without personal expense, Dr. Caldwell will send you a free test bottle if you will send your name and address. The sample will show you how pleasant it is to take, how gently it works. It will start you on the cure of your trouble and convince you that you have found a cure. That is the object of the sample, and the doctor urges you to send for it today.

If there is anything about your ailment that you don't understand, or if you want any medical advice, write to the doctor, and he will answer you fully. There is no charge for this service. The address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 500 Caldwell bldg., Monticello, Ill.

The Can Opener.

Speaker Cannon at Valley Forge defended the milder forms of profanity wittily.

"These not irreverent cuss words," said he, "act as a safety valve. A man but for them might do shocking things—smash the piano, scissor the portieres."

Speaker Cannon lighted a fresh cigar.

"So many things in the home," he said, "incite a man to—er—let off steam. There's opening cans, for instance—opening these newfangled cans with patent openers that are always getting lost.

"A Danville man was letting off steam terribly the other day as he opened one of these patent cans. His wife, tired of the noise, called from the next room:

"'What are you opening that can with, dear?'

"'The can opener, of course,' he replied.

"'Oh,' said she, 'I thought you were opening it with prayer.'"

A Sprained Ankle.

As usually treated a sprained ankle will disable the injured person for a month or more, but by applying Chamberlain's Liniment and by observing the directions with each bottle faithfully, a cure may, in most cases, be effected in less than one week's time. This liniment is a most remarkable preparation; try it for a sprain or a bruise, or when laid up with chronic or muscular rheumatism, and you are certain to be delighted with the prompt relief which it affords. Max Darewski Unspoiled Prodigy.

"The soul of Mozart is in your body," was the original way in which Mme. Patti expressed herself to Max Darewski, the boy musician. Considering the precocious record of this musician, there are those who might believe that there was as much truth as wit in this assertion. He was only five when he composed his first waltz and has written many other things of great merit. At the age of seven he conducted a band at Bournemouth, but probably the most wonderful thing he ever did was to conduct the massed band at the Crystal palace a few years ago, on which occasion he had no less than 400 instrumentalists under his charge.

Sayings and Doings of the Press At Large.

One light tongue can make many heavy hearts.

He who makes no friends has his greatest foe in himself.

Revenge is the abject pleasure of an abject mind.—Juvenal.

A girl hopes to make a name for herself—by marrying.—Kentucky Farmer.

Boston plans a pension bank for old maids. Here is another knock at matrimony.—Blue Grass Clipper.

Forty years of trouble has not driven the Prohibition party to drink.—Chicago News.

The more pleased with himself a man is, the more reasons there are, as a rule, why others are not.

Kindness is stored away in the heart like rose leaves in a drawer—to sweeten every object around.

A woman has to worry about something to keep from worrying about something else.—The Kentucky Farmer.

When you hear one man trying to belittle another, it's a safe bet that the other is his superior.—Blue Grass Clipper.

It's awfully hard for a man to look sad when his wife is making preparations to spend a month in the country.—Glasgow Times.

"Do you stammer all the time?" asked a country doctor whom he had consulted.

"N-n-n-no," he spluttered, "I only st-st-st-st-stammer when I t-t-t-talk."—Shelbyville Sentinel.

Two of 'em makes enough to have annual reunions of those who have been to the North pole.—Owensboro Inquirer.

A girl never marries her ideal. One reason is that she seldom finds him, and when she does she doesn't like him.—Lebanon Enterprise.

A Kansas man is advertising for some one to help him lose his brother. No name is given, but it is probably a progressive Republican trying to get rid of Brother Aldrich.—Bryan's Commoner.

A Texas editor refuses to publish obituary notices of people who, while living failed to subscribe for his paper, and gives this pointed reason; "People who do not take their home paper are dead anyway, and their passing away has no news value."

Editor Harry Sommers, of the Elizbethtown News, was quite ill some time ago, in fact his friends were so alarmed that a doctor was called in. The doctor made a hasty examination, and finally, taking hold of Harry's pulse, remarked slowly, "Poor fellow—circulation almost gone." Jumping up in bed, Harry shouted, "You're a d—n liar! The News has the largest circulation in Kentucky and I can prove it."—Richmond Climax.

A Washington man has invented a muzzle to be used to prevent roosters from crowing. It may work now, but just wait until the returns from the November elections begin to come in and he will find that nothing will check that glorious crow.—Richmond Climax.

Senator Blackburn's declaration that he had rather be dead in Kentucky than alive in Panama, demonstrates that he has lost nothing in lusidity, luridity, or luxuriance, of imagination or expression.—Glasgow Times.

He called her a darling,
She called him a dear,
And so they were married
The first of the year.

And now the bloom's faded
And dimmed is the gloss.
She calls him the master,
He calls her the boss.
—New York Sun.

A man who will work a horse with a sore shoulder and make no attempt to cure it, or change the collar, ought to be compelled to wear ill fitting shoes that would raise a new crop of blisters every week.—Farmers Home Journal.

The information is furnished that meats are to go still higher in price; that there will be an egg famine this winter, and that the cost of living will be considerably advanced. Some of us might as well go in training to go on short rations.—Winchester Democrat.

This morning I picked something up
Found lying on the ground,
And knowing not just what it was,
Began to look around.
What is it, to myself I asked,
So small which I have found?
It seems to be devoid of life,
Of motion, or of sound!
But to know just what this object is
I feel I'm duty bound.

A happy thought into my mind
Its way then quickly stole!
'Twas then my fondest hope, it seemed,
Was 'bout to reach its goal.
I'll raise one end of it, thought I,
Somewhere upon a knoll,
And gently slide the other end
Into a new-dug hole.
Then telegraph to "ferin parts,"
"I've found the great North Pole!"
—The Milton News.

Why Druggists Recommend Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy.

Mr. Frank C. Hanrahan, a prominent druggist of Portsmouth, Va., says. "For the past six years I have sold and recommended Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. It is a great remedy and one of the best patent medicines on the market. I handle some others for the same purposes that pay me a larger profit, but this remedy is so sure to effect a cure, and my customer so sure to appreciate my recommending it to him, that I give it the preference." Dog Eats Money.

Near the first of July J. W. Jones, near Center, Metcalf county, dropped a small sack that contained a check for eighty-seven and one-half dollars and a twenty dollar bill and a ten dollar bill. A young shepherd dog picked it up and ran into the yard and tore the sack up and ate the contents. When Mr. Jones realized what had been done he seemed not to have thought of killing the dog but determined to get witnesses to watch him.

On the second day the fragments of money were left in the corner of the yard; the check was literally digested. A few scraps of the bills were gathered up and brought to R. T. Smith, of Horse Cave.

They were sent to the Secretary of the Treasury at Washington for redemption and the particulars of the case were carefully laid before him. He wrote back saying that there was not a sufficient quantity of the fragments for him to honor with redemption, as it required three fifths of the fragments before he could replace one-half of the money lost. He said that if an affidavit of the truth of this affair could be gotten up with witnesses sufficient that he would have it; there were plenty of witnesses; the affidavit was produced and sent on to Washington, and about twelve days ago the money came in bright new shining bills. The lost check was drawn on the Union Planters Bank, of Horse Cave, and Mr. R. T. Smith paid it off in full. So the loss was made whole.—Munfordsville News.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

LOST—Tuesday, Sept. 21, near Valley Hill, a green folding Pocket Book, containing a certificate from Kimberly Heights School, Tenn. 50c in money and some other papers. Reward if returned to this office or EDWARD DERRINGER.

Last week in our article about the opening of the Graded school we stated that it opened with a small attendance. This was a mistake on the part of the printer as he got his words mixed and set it "small" instead of "large." The attendance is larger this year than it has been since the Graded school was established.

When the Nebraska Indian base ball team comes to the field with scowling faces and savage war whoops, some of the people in the grand stand begin to grow nervous. There is no occasion for this, however. The Indians are simply showing their irrepressible spirits, and never have any trouble with anyone. Those who see their games with the Bardstown team at Bardstown on Wednesday and Thursday, Sept. 22 and 23, certainly have a treat in store.

THE MOUND BUILDERS

Mystery of the Great Monuments Found In This Country.

RELICS OF A VANISHED RACE.

The Strangely Shaped Structures Are Thought to Be More Than Two Thousand Years Old—The Enigma of Those Who Reared Them.

Scattered through the middle west and in other parts of the United States are more than 10,000 monstrous, odd shaped "mounds." Some are built like forts, others in queer, sharp geometrical figures, others shaped like huge serpents, crocodiles, buffaloes, turtles, eagles, lizards, dragons with eggs in their mouths, etc. Some of these mounds are a mile long, some much smaller. In Newark, O., stands a continuous mound, constructed in a perfect circle, more than 5,000 feet in circumference. The mounds are often covered with trees that are many centuries in age. These strangely shaped structures are thought to be more than 2,000 years old.

Who built them?

Certainly not the North American Indians. The Indians have ever been a lazy, roving race, making their livelihood chiefly by hunting and fishing, seldom remaining long in one neighborhood and using tents or the rudest huts as their dwelling places.

The mysterious people who built the mounds were not a race of rovers. An infuiteiy long time must have been required for erecting each huge earth shape. Nor were they ignorant savages, for the mounds show deep knowledge of geometry as well as of astronomy and of the principles of building. Carefully laid out military fortifications abound in the mound builders' country, indicating that the aborigines had martial lore and engineering skill and that they understood many modern principles of attack and defense.

There are also sepulchral mounds, some of them sixty feet high. These contain human bones, skulls, etc., as well as copper utensils and bits of pottery. The bones when exposed to air crumble at once to dust. As the bones of Europeans who died twenty centuries ago are often found intact and strong, many authorities believe the mound builders date back at least several centuries before the time of Julius Caesar.

Cleverly made pottery and copper or bronze implements of war and peace are found all through the mounds. Ancient abandoned copper mines on the banks of Lake Superior show that the mound builders well understood the art of mining. The workmanship of the copper bracelets, bronze knives, etc., prove their skill at the forge.

In one of the prehistoric Lake Superior mines has been found a mass of copper weighing eight tons, resting on a high platform, ready for removal to the upper earth. This implies the use of well constructed mine machinery. Pictures that have been found etched upon copper and ivory portray much artistic skill.

From all this it seems that in some remote age the central part of North America was inhabited by a race of warlike, industrious, decidedly civilized beings who had splendid skill at building, at the arts of mining, engineering and higher mathematics and who flourished apparently during numerous centuries. Yet so long ago did the mound builders cease to exist that in all Indian folklore there is no mention, no memory, of them.

None know where the Indians themselves came from. Yet they apparently settled in America long after the mound builders had vanished. The skulls discovered in the mounds are not shaped in the least like skulls of Indians nor even of Europeans. Some archaeologists claim to find strong resemblance between the mound builders' skulls and those of the ancient Egyptians. If there were any connection between the two, who can explain how an Egyptian race chanced to flourish in the middle west?

The fate of the mound builders is as mysterious as the strange people themselves. After reaching so high a civilization and thriving for so long a time it seems strange that they should have been completely destroyed. No satisfactory explanation has ever been offered. Perhaps the mound builders moved south and became merged with the Mexican Aztecs or Peruvians, or some savage race from the north may have swept down and utterly destroyed them, or a wholesale pestilence may have wiped out their nation.

The weird looking earthen monuments (the purpose of most of them a puzzle to the best archaeologists) are the sole remaining proof that this great lost American race ever existed.—New York World.

How He Managed.

A man in an up state county owns a number of horses and has a great reputation for skill in the treatment of them. One day a farmer who wanted some valuable information approached the horse owner's little boy and said:

"Look here, my little man, when one of your father's horses is ill what does he do?"

"Do you mean slightly ill or seriously ill?" asked the boy cautiously.

"Oh, seriously ill," said the farmer.

"Because," said the child, "if a horse is only slightly ill he gives it medicine, but if it is seriously ill he sells it."—New York Press.

Troubles must come to all men, but those who are always looking for them will have the largest share.

THE SPORTING WORLD

Ball's Big Improvement.

It has often been said that a change of scene often benefits a ball player. This seems to be so in the case of Nell Ball, the former New Yorker, now a member of the Cleveland Americans. When with the Highlanders Ball played an inconsistent game, but since joining the Naps he has put up a rattling good game at short. In a recent game against Boston Ball made a triple play unassisted.

Ball's great achievement probably saved the game for his team. Wagner and Stahl of the Bostons opened the second inning with clean singles. On the hit and run Ball went over to cover second, and so was in a position to spear McConnell's vicious liner, almost directly over the bag. He had but to step on the cushion to double up Wagner, who had left with the pitch. Stahl had such a lead off first that he was unable to stop until he was within a step or two of Ball. Neal had then but to tag him before he could recover to complete the triple put out. Ball has the distinction of making the first play of this kind that has ever been seen in the major leagues. Only six times previously in the history of baseball has the play occurred.

To Boom Horse Racing.

August Belmont's announcement that he will race almost exclusively in America in future is regarded as excellent proof that the turf in this country will not be obliterated. Mr. Belmont has paid an unusual amount of attention to racing here this season, visiting the tracks almost daily, and says he is convinced that the public will support the game with enough liberality to keep it alive, even if it may be several years before the old popularity returns. Mr. Belmont's determination to have thirty nursery bred yearlings turned over to Trainers John Whalen and Thomas Welsh to be prepared for next season's campaign on the metropolitan tracks is the result of careful observation and, it is thought, will result in other big turfmen following the example of the Jockey club's chairman. Mr. Belmont will send three yearlings to England more as a compliment to Trainer Watson than for any other reason. But superb breeding establishments in Kentucky will be shown on the New York race courses.

Steady 2:10 Trotters Scarce.

The two minute trotter appeared six years ago, and the trotters that have beaten 2:05 number sixteen, but the person who can breed or develop a horse so that he can trot three successive heats in 2:10 can get a price for him that will pay well for the effort, and he can also earn money enough in one year with such a horse to keep the owner in good condition the following year. While the list of 2:10 trotters is a long one, filling over two pages in the year book, the fact remains that a 2:10 trotter is good enough to win in any country if he can trot three successive heats that fast, and the people who go to harness races will always enthuse over any trotter that can do it.

Changes In Athletic Rules.

At the last meeting of the Amateur Athletic Union of the United States steps were taken for important changes in the rules governing championships of the A. A. U. and the legislation committee was instructed at that time to prepare new rules providing for several new events—namely, the hop, step and jump and throwing the javelin. These have been added to the championship list, as has also the ten mile run. The ten mile run has not been given for several years past, but it is now made one of the annual fixtures.

Vanderbilt Heads Winning List.

W. K. Vanderbilt heads the list of winners on the French turf since the season opened on March 12 last, his horses having won $160,400 up to July 15. Maurice Rothschild comes next, with a total of $121,200. Baron de Rothschild's horse Verdum was the greatest single winner, $110,600, including the $75,000 Grand Prix. Mr. Vanderbilt's Oversight comes next with $61,000 to his credit.

NEW BASEBALL PILOTS

Changes to Be Made In Major League Teams Next Season.

O'CONNOR TO LEAD BROWNS.

St. Louis Americans Have Selected "Noisy Jack" as Manager For 1910. Cantillon Through In Washington, Brooklyn and Boston.

Baseball magnates not only are hunting for players, but they are keeping a sharp lookout for managers. One major league club (Cleveland) has already obtained a new pilot. Larry Lajoie, the former leader of the Naps, having tired of the everlasting anvil chorus played by the fans and critics alike because he did not get a pennant winning combination for the Forest City, has retired to the rank of a private.

There will be new leaders in 1910 for the Washington and St. Louis and possibly the Chicago teams of the American league, and it is no certainty there will not be new commanders for the Brooklyn and Boston clubs of the National league. Possibly President Ebbets of the Superbas will allow Harry Lumley to continue another year as leader of the Brooklyn brigade, but as Charles H. canned Patsy Donovan for not getting results and as the Lestershire justice hasn't made any better showing than Donovan made the indications point to a change.

Whether Frank Chance, John McGraw, Hugh Jennings, Connie Mack or Fred Clarke could have done any better with the Boston Nationals than Harry Smith now is doing never will be known. John S. Dovey, president of the Doves, may decide to let Smith remain in control of Boston's aggregation of misfits, and then again he may pick out some former Boston player who is popular with the public and put him in command. The woods are full of athletes of this kind—Duke Farrell, Hughey Duffy and Tommy McCarthy, for example.

The new manager of the St. Louis Americans already has been selected. Jack O'Connor, better known as "Rowdy Jack," will step into the shoes of James Royal McAleer. "Sunny Jim" will not mind retiring to the peace and quietude of Youngstown, O., after eight years of service in the Mound City.

This is the last season fans on the American league circuit will have to listen to the weird coaching of Joe Cantillon. As a testimonial of their regard for keeping the Senators in last place the Washington owners intend to present to Sir Joseph a lovely set of tinware, and he can go to Chicago and run his hotel or dash to Minneapolis and help Brother Mike run the Millers after this season. The Cantillon regime has been a first class frost.

Thus far the names of many pastimers have been mentioned as his probable successor. Those on the inside think Guy Harris White, sporting emporium proprietor, tooth puller, southpaw pitcher and substitute center fielder of the White Sox, has the best chance of landing the job.

Bill Bernhard, who was a major league pitcher for nine seasons, once loomed up as the man likely to be selected as the next manager of the Cleveland fence breakers. Undoubtedly "Strawberry Bill" has demonstrated his class as a peerless leader since he has been in command of the Nashville club of the Southern league. Last season Bernhard landed the Tennesseeans in front in one of the hottest races on record. This year he has them in second place and within striking distance of the top. Bill may yet secure a berth as manager in a major league.

Unless Fielder Jones gives up the life of an Oregon timber king there will be no change in the management of the Chicago White Stockings. B. Sullivan suits Commy, and the old Roman intends to back him to the limit in getting a good team together. Thus far Comiskey has expended $100,000 for new material for his much darned Sox. This sum does not represent actual cash, but includes players who will have to be turned over to minor league clubs in order to put through the deals that have been made.

An odd thing about the fifteen present major league pilots is that the majority of them are or were backstops. Stallings, Mack, Sullivan, Jennings, Lake, Bresnahan, Chance and Smith all have been knights of the wind pad. The one pitcher among the managers is Clarke Griffith, the infielders are Cantillon and McGraw, and the outfielders are McAleer, Clarke, Murray and Lumley.

WASHINGTON LETTER

[Special Correspondence.]

The remodeling of the executive offices in the western wing of the White House began the other day with the removal of the office furniture to the cloakrooms adjoining the porte-cochere at the other end of the building. In the cloakrooms Assistant Secretary Mischler, who is in charge of the office force left behind by Mr. Taft on his departure for Beverly, will conduct such part of the president's routine correspondence as can be handled in his absence.

White House Changes.

The plans for the changes in the president's offices call for the expenditure of $40,000. The front elevation of the office wing will be left unchanged, as the extensions will be made at the rear. The contractors in charge of the work expect to tear out the rear walls within a few days and to rush the work as rapidly as possible so as to insure completion before the president's return on Nov. 10.

When the White House was remodeled in President Roosevelt's time the work lasted for six months, during a part of which period Mr. Roosevelt and his family were in the executive mansion.

Ghosts of the Capitol.

The big capitol building on the hill has its ghosts, identified and otherwise, with which to conjure up tales of other days. Some of the tales told by the old employees of the building in reference to these ghosts are picturesque; others are laughable; others carry with them that tinge of tragedy that makes them the more interesting.

Naturally there are quite a number of thoroughly identified ghosts registered in different parts of the edifice. The existence of the restless pilgrims from another land is vouched for by several of the employees of the building, and, while most of them are supposed to confine their operations to the basement, there are several that are reputed to roam all over the place.

Spectral Footsteps.

When the body of President Garfield lay in state at the capitol an old engineer who was employed in the basement and who ridiculed the idea of ghosts decided to be revenged upon the watchmen and policemen who remained in the building through the night. He procured two large English walnuts and securely tied the half shells on the four feet of the pet cat and carefully turned her loose in statuary hall.

The noise of these shells on the marble floors at midnight in the semidarkness as the distracted cat scampered about trying to get rid of her new shoes gave the watchers the worst fright of their lives. The incident, though a harmless joke, gave rise to the story of the spectral footsteps which follow all those who have to cross the rotunda in statuary hall after the building is closed for the night.

Wraith of J. Q. Adams.

The wraith of John Quincy Adams, from all narratives on the subject, seems to be the one most often encountered. At times it is alleged that he may be seen in statuary hall, formerly the old house of representatives and the scene of his death, accompanied by the whole congress of 1848 gathered in ghostly conclave. He is also accredited with roaming about all parts of the capitol and may be seen at almost any time.

There is also a story of General Logan, who returns, it is said, to observe the doings of the committee on military affairs, of which he was so long the chairman. Those who claim to have encountered the general say that he always wears a black slouch hat and remains either in the committee room or in the corridor adjoining.

L'Enfant's Apparition.

According to one of the many legends which have been gradually accumulating ever since the building was completed, a corridor in the senate wing basement has a frequent ghostly walker of a foreign aspect. This tall, distinguished looking individual is reported to confine his activities to pacing up and down that particular passageway and giving a dignified military salute at frequent intervals. His identity is still a mystery to the initiated in spiritual lore, but it is believed that it is the ghost of Major L'Enfant, the talented Frenchman who designed the city of Washington.

The demon cat legend has been repeated for the last fifty years as the animal apparition which returns at irregular periods. The story does not vary much, being merely that of an ordinary tabby at first sight, but she grows to a gigantic horror before the eyes of a frightened observer. Suddenly this demon cat emits a fierce yowl and with eyes ablaze and mouth open leaps toward the spectator, but invariably leaps over his head.

The Library Spooks.

In the library section there were two ghosts always on duty, if the solemn word of the capitol policemen may be believed. One of these, a wraith of a thin, little old gentleman, had been frantically searching for years in one of the subcellars for something hidden among the volumes. During his lifetime he had the reputation of being very eccentric, hoarding and hiding many unusual things among the books he loved. Just before his death he endeavored desperately to impart some knowledge to those around his bed, but, being paralyzed, died without having his last wish granted. Long after his demise it was discovered that he had stowed away several thousand dollars' worth of registered government bonds among the musty volumes of that subcellar.

SHETLAND PONIES.

Raised With Profit In Several States. Their Good Points.

The business of raising Shetland ponies has become a profitable and important industry in several states. The little animals seem to thrive better in the northern and middle states than in the extreme south, doubtless because of their origin in the rigorous climate of the Shetland islands. This is true only with reference to their breeding, for the Shetland pony is a true cosmopolitan, at home in all lands and in all climes, and is perhaps unequaled by any other animal in points of hardiness and endurance. In describing a Shetland's points an authority writes as follows:

"The head should not be too fine, and the eye should be prominent, the ears of good size and set well forward. The neck is thick and crested high up, so that the impression is conveyed that the crest extends right up to the ears. This gives appearances of great strength in the neck and, added to the broad shoulders, enables the pony to draw great weights. The neck should be of good length and the back, of course, short. The rib should be very well sprung, any indication of slabsidedness favoring of the Icelander. The quarters should be as round as an apple and the tail set on moderately high.

In short, the Shetland pony should pass muster when judged by the points of a horse, and there must be no appearance of delicacy about him. Nothing effeminate will do for a Shetland stallion. A poor neck is a fatal fault, and for the same reason nothing coarse will do for a mare. The geldings should be a sturdy medium between the two. Another fatal fault is an inclination to legginess. In fact, short legs are so characteristic of the Shetland that a leggy one is a rarity to be met with, and if a pony is really leggy he is certain to have Icelander blood in his veins.

"So in selecting a pony look for one that is short legged, sturdy in build, thick in the chest, strong in his neck, round in his quarters, pleasant faced and with a nice mane and forelop. The forelop should come between the ears from the top of the crest, and the pony's legs should be sound and strong. The pastern should be springy and the action smart and 'trappy' as possible. The eye will in the most of cases disclose the disposition, but it is very rarely indeed that a pure bred Shetland is either pigheaded or vicious."

Silo Notes.

The silo is a sign of dairy prosperity.

A cow to the acre is not impossible when silage is fed.

Silage makes splendid sheep feed when used judiciously.

The time is coming when silos will be as numerous as corncribs.

The man who has the largest milk checks is the man who feeds silage.

The silage fed cow is very easy to pick out, especially in the early summer or late spring.

Remember it's easier to fill and easier to feed from two small silos than one large one. The silage will keep better too.

The silo is appreciated at no season more than just between winter and summer feeds. The hay is usually low, and the cattle are hungry for green, succulent feed. Silage bridges over the season and brings the stock out in good condition.—Kimball's Dairy Farmer.

Streaky Butter.

Streaky of mottled butter may be caused by the salt or it may be due to the working of the butter. The salt is so evenly diffused in the finest kind of butter that, as is shown by a microscope, every grain is surrounded by a film of clear and transparent brine, which points out the necessity of avoiding the overworking of the butter before the salt is added. In the first working every particle of the milk should be got rid of, but enough clear water should be left to dissolve every grain of salt in twelve hours before the next working. If this is done there will be but little danger of streakiness in the butter, but to get the best results the salt should be very finely ground.

Bokhara Sheep.

The department of agriculture is seriously considering the introduction into this country of Bokhara sheep, from which comes the fur called Persian lamb. All astrakhan fur is now raised on territory tributary to the Caspian sea. The best fur is taken from the lamb when it is only four or five days old. The Bokhara sheep also makes good mutton.

The A B C and X Y Z of ADVERTISING

A SERIES OF TEN TALKS ON ADVERTISING written by Seymour Eaton of Philadelphia No. 9

The man who succeeds must fill his job so full that he bulges out a little at the top; where people can see him. The successful store must do the same thing, only in a different way.

The goods must be on hand; the prices must be right; the service must be commendable; the trading must be square; the kind of square that has four equal sides and four right angles.

Every successful store has its trademark whether the merchant knows it or not. Its advertising and its service have created a public sentiment in its favor which neither reverses nor fire nor time can obliterate. Nine times out of ten this trademark is the store's biggest asset.

Much of the ordinary store advertising is a hand-to-mouth sort of business; an effort to make tomorrow's sales equal to today's or yesterday's; and this is just as true of the department store as of the smaller shop. The advertisement appears in the morning and the merchant figures out the net results in the evening. It is true that the bargain advertisement of today is of little, if any, use next week. It is forgotten in twenty-four hours; but if the store makes a feature of genuine bargains, then each bargain sale helps to advertise the bargain department. The advertising ought to be done in such a way as to permanently advertise the department as well as to emphasize the bargains of the day.

Don't go at it as if you were advertising an auction sale. As I said at the outset, your store is the seed in the soil; the advertising is the rain and the sunshine. Inexperienced advertisers dig up the seed every evening to see if it is growing; or pull up the young plant by the roots because it didn't bear fruit or flowers the first week.

It is safe to say that not more than one-third of the people are looking for bargains; the other two-thirds are looking for quality and style. The very fact that the goods are offered at bargain prices leaves the impression that there is something wrong with the quality or that the style is a season behind. Good advertising should enable a merchant to sell $20 coats at $25 instead of $25 coats at $12.50; in other words, it should create confidence rather than doubt. As in stocks and bonds, the securities quoted above par are always more desirable in the thought of the investing public than are those quoted at a discount.

Advertising is a tremendous force which in action contradicts all mechanical laws. The circumference and speed and working power increase, while the motor remains the same.

Make your advertising continuous. This is the first great secret of success. Copy and medium and circulation are all subordinate to keeping everlastingly at it.
